

the richmond Black Press
richmondreview.com

REVIEW

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 2011

INSIDE

City wants small aircraft gone Page 3

Gateway presents Mary's Wedding Page 5

Sports should be fun Page 20

MISSING
POOLES
Call me to find out immediately will be for the best p

More ways to vote

Remembrance Day at City Hall

City wants smart meter program stopped

Health concerns prompt city to do 'most that we can do'

City to announce dog buy

Bridal bonanza, 27

Wednesday, November 9, 2011

Richmond Review • Page 27

The Wedding Parfait at Aberdeen Centre

Around Town
Amanda Oye

Bridal showcase

Wedding bliss took over Aberdeen Centre last weekend at The Wedding Parfait—the mall's first bridal showcase.

The event, which was put on by Wedopia.ca, featured 28 vendors, fashion shows, contests and tips on how to plan a wedding.

"There [was] a lot of traffic," said Shirley Chan, the event marketing manager with Wedopia.ca.

There were "a lot of vendors who were really interested in it," she said.

Some of the vendors gave couples ideas of locations for their weddings while others who specialize in photography, flowers, cakes and makeup had samples out.

A big draw to the event was the fashion show though. Showcasing 40 dresses from Mia Boutique and Anaiss On Weddings, brides could check out dresses for themselves and their bridesmaids.

"The fashion show was really important," said Chan. "A lot of brides, they love to come check out dresses."

Over the course of the weekend they had six fashion shows and 10 stage talks, which gave tips for planning the perfect wedding.

Amanda Oye covers the social scene for The Review. Reach her at amanda.oye@telus.net.

Raymond Lui and Ivy Leung.

Suzan and Emma McLoughlin.

Teresa Thibault and Calvin Chan.

Adrienne Sim and Jeff Huang.

Eloise Chiew, the owner of Sugar Chandelier Inc.

Felix Steffenhagen and Irene Yu.

Moon Lim and Amy Woo.